

SIGNIFICANT

Were Deliberations of National Catholic Educational Convention.

Strong Protest Against Any Encroachment on the Rights of Parents.

Uniformity of Text Books a Subject For Lengthy Debate.

INSPIRED WORDS OF SISTER

For Catholics the recent deliberations of the national Catholic educational convention—that body of eminent educators that is the great clearing house for the best of Catholic educational thought—must be fraught with the most significant interest. Claiming no rights of authority to dictate hard and fast rules for anyone by reason of the ripe experience of its members, the profound research of its thinkers and speakers, the finality of its decisions are univocally conceded by those alive to Catholic interests.

The association concluded its sessions by some telling resolutions. One of these was a strong protest against any encroachment on the rights of parents in the education of their children in liberty of education. A vigorous protest was also launched against the imparting of sexual knowledge to children, as at present carried on in many private and public schools of the country. A request was made to the American Medical Association to instruct its medical council, in view of the spirit of antagonism shown by the Carnegie Foundation to hospitals under religious control (and there are 500 run by Catholics in the United States), to discontinue the services of the Carnegie Foundation.

Heartily favoring the highest standards of college education and approving every attempt to classify colleges, the college department deprecated the action of the Federal bureau in its attempt to classify the colleges of the country in groups of A, B and C, and stated that in doing so the bureau had exceeded its power.

The parish school department in its resolutions emphasized the child's inalienable right to a Christian education and fixed the place where the first early education of the child must be obtained in the Christian home. Educational methods similar to those that have throttled enterprise in industry and created trusts were condemned. Pastors were urged to warn and counsel their children in regard to modesty of dress, the excessive use of pleasure, the evils of the picture show and corrupt newspapers. Attention was called to the great waste in public funds and the evil of excessive taxation, the tendency on the part of the State to do for the citizen what he should do for himself. The State was urged to encourage her citizens in the care of their children, but was asked not to place too heavy burdens on those who already at great sacrifice are discharging the duties of parenthood.

Thanks were returned to the Holy Father for admitting the children at an early age to holy communion, and as Catholic teachers the department bore testimony to the excellent fruits of this practice. Religious vocations should be fostered by parents, teachers and pastors; the avoidance of current secular literature was urged and the Catholic church was shown to be in her traditions and experience the great storehouse of educational theory and practice.

The parish school department also made urgent recommendation for the same parish school advantages for the 5,000 deaf, mute, Catholic children that are enjoyed by normal children in the parochial schools, if their faith is to be guarded.

Besides the very definite and tangible results of the convention embodied in the resolutions drawn up and approved by the general association and its three important sections, the parochial, parish school and college departments, there were very wonderful indications of other advances in Catholic thought for interests in the general trend of the papers and discussions.

Free parochial schools and free text-books for the children of these schools were the burdens of many of the papers and discussions. If the parochial system is to fairly compete with the public school one. Larger efforts for the establishment of industrial and vocational schools were recognized as a need in the modern life of the Catholic American child. Uniformity of curriculum in parish schools was the basis of thought for able papers, and in the consummation of this much-to-be-desired result there was much healthy divergence of opinion, some holding to the eight-hour grade, elementary course and a big following, led by the General Secretary, Dr. P. W. Howard, of Columbus, Ohio, favoring a six-grade elementary training. These were backed by the entire college department. Classification of secondary training was recommended by this leader for division into four classes, namely, for those who would enter the professions—ministry, law, medicine, journalism or education—the technical ones, like engineering, agriculture, etc.; those who seek commercial and business pursuits, and the fourth class, who engage in manual labor and who are backward and deficient in their studies.

Uniformity of text-books was one of the debatable questions considered. Most of the speakers held for more uniformity than is known at present; two put forth very able arguments for complete uniformity; all agreed that uniformity in the catechism text is an absolute essential. One Sister of the Sacred Heart of New Orleans, like an inspired prophetess, predicted that "Rome will speak on the question of uniformity of text-books and that it will come."

CHARLES WHITE.

The death of Charles White, aged ninety, at Fairfield, Nelson county, on Monday, July 7, notwithstanding his age, is a distinct loss to Louisville, where he had lived for three-quarters of a century. Born in Dublin, Ireland, Mr. White came to America seventy-nine years ago and settled in New Albany, where he remained until about 1856, when he came to Louisville. Having been trained as a carpenter he soon obtained remunerative employment with Architect Whitestone, also a native of Ireland and was his superintendent of building for a number of years. In the course of his career he built the Galt House and many of the fine mansions that graced the city before the civil war. Afterward he engaged in business for himself and for a number of years was a contracting builder under the firm name of Hughes & White. During his time he built many large structures in which he was held his own to him. About twenty years ago Mr. White, having obtained a competency, retired from business, and lived with his sister, Mrs. Cosgrove, at 1025 West Jefferson street. Two years ago he was induced by his daughter, Mrs. James McKenna, to go to Fairfield, where he remained until death called him.

Charles White was one of the most estimable men that ever lived in Louisville. He was what might be termed an "Irish gentleman," and all who enjoyed his acquaintanceship knew this. He was a well-read man, but he was not demonstrative in any way. Modest to a fault, he gave advice to those who sought it, and he was often called upon to arbitrate differences. Because of the respect in which he was held his advice was heeded. Of his charities much might be said, but those who were the recipients of his bounty know best how to speak of this feature of his character. He gave liberally to the Sisters of Nazareth and to St. Patrick's church, of which he was a member for half a century or more, and certainly many of these will pray for the repose of his soul.

In early life Mr. White married Miss Clarke, who was a native of Ireland. Her brother is Joseph I. C. Clarke, former editor of the New York Sunday Herald, and at present connected with the publicity department of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Clarke is also author of several volumes of poetry and wrote the stirring poem at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war entitled "Kelly, Burke and Shea." Mr. Clarke and Mr. White were intimate friends all of their lives. Later in life Mr. White married again, and the surviving children are Mrs. James McKenna, of Fairfield; Mrs. White, of Butte, Mont., and James White, of Louisville. His second wife, who died ten years ago, was Margaret Campbell, half-sister of the late Patrick Bannan and sister of Bernard J. Campbell, President of the Kentucky Wall Plaster Company.

The funeral of Mr. White took place from the Cathedral of the Assumption on Thursday morning and was largely attended.

THE DAY FOR ALL.

Rev. Thomas York and the men and women of St. Paul's parish have perfected arrangements for the greatest all-day picnic ever held in this city, to be given at Phoenix Hill Park on Wednesday, July 23. The admission is only ten cents, and the prizes on the entrance tickets are handsome and valuable. There will be a most excellent chicken dinner during the afternoon and evening, all the fowls being tender and fresh from the country. Euchre and lotto will be played, the games to be called at 3 and 8 o'clock, for which a large number of fine awards have been secured. Collins' band has been engaged for the day and night, and the musical programme includes the latest popular productions. There also will be amusements for young and old and a good time for everybody. An interesting feature will be the contest for amateur singers, the winner of which will receive $5 in gold. For this there should be a large number of entries.

HIBERNIAN MOONLIGHT.

Much interest is being manifested in the moonlight excursion to be given by the Hibernian Social Club next Monday evening on the steamer Corona, and this popular organization is preparing to entertain the biggest crowd of its career. The Dance and Reception Committee is composed of the following: William Silk, Matt O'Brien, Edward McDonnell, John Riley, J. J. Maloney, William O'Neal, John Price, John Broderick and Thomas Quinn. Collins' orchestra will furnish the music.

SAILED FOR IRELAND.

Master Clarey Moran and his cousin, Miss Nellie Walsh, left Monday for New York, from where they sailed on Thursday for Ireland. They have relatives in the County Mayo with whom they will visit until next spring.

INSPIRING

Was the Knights of Columbus Fourth of July Celebration.

Thousands Throng Central Park to See Scenes of '76 Re-Enacted.

Cheers and Applause Greeted Ringing of the Old Liberty Bell.

GLORIOUS DAY FOR LOUISVILLE

The most patriotic and inspiring Fourth of July celebration ever witnessed in Louisville or Kentucky was that held under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, when 10,000 enthusiastic and highly pleased people witnessed the grand pageant and re-enactment of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. A brilliant assemblage was gathered beneath the trees and on the hillside facing the stage, where the splendid spectacle of the nation's birth was enacted by fifty-six Knights dressed in velvet knickerbockers, silk blouses, powdered wigs, silk stockings and silver-buckled shoes. The stage was a replica of the assembly room in old Independence Hall, where the forefathers declared "this to be a free and independent nation." The furniture was of the Colonial type, and on the President's table stood the familiar ink horn and quill pen. The stage faced the hill, and the crowd was grouped about, much as in the days of Rome. Long before the performance began the park was alive with people. Capt. Hogan, of the First police district, with twelve officers and patrolmen and several plain clothes men, was on hand to keep order. A medical corps was provided, but no accidents occurred.

The Choral Club, composed of 300 male and female voices, under the direction of Prof. Anthony Molengraaf, was grouped on benches at the left of the stage. As delegates to the Continental Congress began to file into the hall, these 300 voices, blended into the singing of "America." The entire audience arose and stood with uncovered heads while the national anthem was sung. The young women of the chorus were dressed in white, and each waved an American flag during the singing. The pageant was in accordance with history.

At 5:45 o'clock Col. P. H. Callahan, as President John Hancock, called the delegates to order after the roll call by Edward Kirwan, as Secretary Thomas Heyward, Jr., Thomas A. Bohan, as Richard Henry Lee, moved that the committee appointed to draw up the Declaration make its report. The famous document was read by Camden McAtee, as Thomas Jefferson, and the long debate being eliminated, the Declaration was adopted upon the motion of Louis A. Russell, as Lyman Hall. After the roll had been called and all of the delegates voted "yes," that the gauntlet should be thrown down to England and the war for independence be begun the President gave the command that the glad news be spread. The part of the messenger, who so distinguished himself on that first Fourth of July, was taken by George Francis Hardman, twelve-year-old son of S. R. Hardman, Ho., who was dressed in Colonial costume. Jumping from the stage, he ran through the crowd, up to the hill to the pergola, where a reproduction of the liberty bell hung as it once did in the old tower, and plied the clapper while the crowd cheered and applauded.

While the members were signing the Declaration the chorus sang "Hail Columbia" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." The grand tableau, "America," closed the exercises. With the 250 members of the chorus as a background, Misses Mary E. Fitzgerald, Marie Bannan and Constantine Cassidy, formed the central figures. They were dressed in white, with red, white and blue sashes, and each wore a large American Beauty in her hair. As the audience and the trained singers united in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" the crowd seemed a sea of waving flags. From the hands of the three young women of the tableau fluttered large silken "Old Glories." The assembled delegates stood at the front of the stage during this spectacle.

Dr. Walker B. Gossett, Chairman of the committee appointed by the Sons of the Revolution to judge the essays on the Declaration of Independence was introduced by Col. Callahan. Dr. Gossett announced that Miss Grace Elizabeth Watson was the winner of the $10 prize, and also unexpectedly stated that the Sons of the American Revolution had awarded a second prize of $5 to W. J. Bryan-Walsh for the best composition. Miss Watson was escorted to the platform and complimented by Dr. Gossett, Col. Callahan and many of the Knights, while the crowd cheered loudly. Her essay was then read by Camden McAtee. The committee which judged the essays was selected from among Sons of the American Revolution on the invitation of the Knights of Columbus. Besides Dr. Gossett, George T. Wood, J. B. Hundley, President of the Kentucky Society; Allen R. Carter, George L. Danforth and George H. Wilson served.

Becoming Disgusted at Yellow Journal Tactics of Herald.

Minor Thefts and Burglaries Magnified Into Sensational Scores.

Attempt to Draw Attention From Misfit Progressive Nomininees.

HERALD'S IDEA OF CHARITY

As predicted in the columns of the Kentucky Irish American, people of all classes, regardless of party affiliation, are disgusted with the yellow journal tactics of the Louisville Herald with its daily scare-heads of imaginary burglaries and dope dream stories, minor thefts magnified into wholesale robberies, one of their latest being the story of how a big moving van backed up to a prominent residence on Broadway while the bold burglars filled the vehicle with loot in broad daylight and drove away. The whole thing would be amusing if it wasn't for the odium and bad name given the town, frightening possible buyers and visitors away, but many are of the opinion that the out-of-law owners of the Herald are not caring for the result to Louisville's business interests and reputation and are only interested to the extent of selling their morning scare. The daily attempt to besmirch the good name of the whole police force and administration simply because of the weaknesses or downfall of a few has resulted in an open boycott of the Herald and its tactics and renewed confidence in the present splendid police department, from Col. Lindsey and Major Ridge down to the wagon guards.

As an evidence of this Chicago owned sheet, twelve policemen summoned in the Police Court the other morning were described as "twelve bull-necked policemen," while the daily and malicious attacks on Chairman Lerney, of the Board of Public Safety, are in retaliation for his statement that he "didn't ever waste time reading the Herald."

Another phase of its attack was a sneer at Col. John Whallen's charitable enterprises, the just arrived editorial writer taking a fling at the winter commissary of winter before last, when thousands were clothed and fed by the Whallen brothers and their friends. The Herald gentlemen confronted, with a like situation, would probably furnish the suffering and needy with a beautiful poem.

The principal object of the Herald's campaign against the police department is to furnish campaign "under for the collection of down-and-outers. A. P. A.'s and castoffs from other parties that they have gathered together for November and labeled them the Progressive party, the caliber of many of them being of the lowest.

THREE LIES.

Editor of A. P. A. Organ Called For Deliberate Misrepresentation.

Brann's Iconoclast Pours Hot Shot That Makes Menace Editor Wriggle.

Conclusive Proof That Catholics Did Not Assassinate Our Presidents.

GUTTER PAPER PROVED LAIR

C. A. Windle, editor of Brann's Iconoclast, who is a non-Catholic by the way, pays his respects to the Menace in the following and incidentally calls it on their recent assertion that Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley were assassinated by Catholics:

The Menace, published in Aurora, Missouri, is a lying, malignant, journalistic character-assassin conceived in prejudice, born of bigotry, inspired by hatred, fed by fanaticism, fostered by ignorance, upheld by deception, encouraged by intolerance, flattered by fraud and brazen with infamy. Its columns are rank with verbal rot, mingled with snarl and reeking with fostering lies. This slander beslimed, muck-filled, malodorous, malevolent, literary monstrosity is edited by a putrescent pin-head, known as "Rev." Teddy Walker, who is the most conspicuous example of atavism extant. He should have been born four hundred years ago. Why his advent was delayed, so as to project him bodily into the midst of this age of automobiles, flying machines, moving pictures and wireless telegraphy, surpasses human understanding. All we know is that he is here, bringing with him the intolerance of a Calvin, the conscience of a hyena, the zeal of a fanatic and the methods of a skunk.

In the Menace for June 7 I find the following, headed "A Wful Record":

"1865—President Abraham Lincoln murdered by J. Wilkes Booth, Catholic.
"1881—President James A. Garfield assassinated by a Catholic, Charles Guiteau.
"1901—President William McKinley assassinated by Leon Czolgosz, Catholic."

If all allegation here made were true, it would not be just to hold the Catholic church responsible for the criminal acts of some of its bad members. Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and members of all churches have committed murder, but nobody but an idiot would think of condemning these churches on that account.

The "A Wful Record" here recited was not made by a single Catholic. The allegations of the Menace contain three "awful lies," each blacker than the hinges of hell. As a matter of fact, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley were assassinated by Protestants, but a man who would base his objections to Protestantism on the crimson acts of these bad men ought to be tapped for the similes.

Ex-Priest Chiniaky invented the canard about Lincoln's assassination being due to a Catholic conspiracy. He invented a lot of other fakes which he incorporated in his book. He also invented a beautiful scheme for ripping Protestants loose from their coin, to "build homes for ex-priests and nuns." He got the money but the homes never materialized. Now and then he would buy some cheap shack and burn it down. He then report that the "rascally Romanists" had burned down his home for priests, and hit the grit on another grafting expedition. When the Menace repeated his charge that J. Wilkes Booth was a Catholic, it gave currency to a villainous lie, solely for the purpose of arousing bitterness, suspicion and hatred against Catholics. Ever since that damnable lie crept from Chiniaky's sleazy pen it has wriggled and hissed its hellish way through the homes and brains of men, spitting its vile venom in the face of friendship and poisoning the springs of good will. The time has come to crush its head where it lies snugly coiled in the pages of the Menace.

J. Wilkes Booth was the son of J. Brannius Booth, the great tragedian, who was an admirer of all religions, was not a professor of any. He was a prominent Mason and his ancestors were Jews. J. Wilkes Booth was a brother of Edwin Booth, who was a loyal Republican and cast his ballot in 1864 for Abraham Lincoln. J. Wilkes Booth was a Southern sympathizer and shot Lincoln to avenge the South. His act could not have been inspired by Catholics. Religion had nothing to do with it. The South, then as now, was strongly Protestant. For every Catholic who fought with Lee to destroy the Union, there were fifty fighting under Grant to save it. The logic of the situation, all known facts, forbid the conclusion that Lincoln died as a result of a Catholic conspiracy. Further repetition of the charge that J. Wilkes Booth was a Catholic should be taken as an evidence of willful perjury.

The charge that President Garfield was assassinated by a Catholic is equally false. Menace readers who accepted that statement as true believed a lie. Charles Guiteau, the murderer, was a Protestant, reared in the Oneida Community, near Oneida, N. Y. As a young man he was a member of this free love cult, but afterward was converted by Moody and became a Second Advent preacher and lecturer. He wrote a book called "Truth," which was printed by the Blakely Printing Company of Chicago. Its pages are filled with half-baked rot about the meaning of prophecies and other visionary projects. He made a rambling speech for Garfield during the campaign and was "choked off" by the National Committee, but conceived the idea that the President ought to make him Minister to Austria. When Garfield refused, he imagined that the country was going straight to hell. He claimed that God inspired him to slay the President in order to save the republic. The menace he feared did not exist outside of his own disordered mind. In this respect he resembles Editor Walker. He was as far from being a Catholic as is Walker, and nearly as idiotic. When in New York or Chicago, Guiteau made himself at home around the quarters of the Y. M. C. A. See Alexander's Life and Trial of Guiteau.

Readers of the Menace were also asked to believe that Leon Czolgosz, who assassinated President McKinley, was a Catholic. Regardless of what his parents may have been, Czolgosz was an anarchist, despising all constituted authority, both secular and religious. His philosophy was the antithesis of Catholicism. Before he could become a disciple of Emma Goldman, Leon Czolgosz had to turn his back upon every tenet of the church and repudiate every principle of the Christian religion. Anarchists are not only haters of government but they reject the God idea. Tom Watson is a better Catholic than Leon Czolgosz, who assassinated President McKinley.

BARBECUE POSTPONED.

Owing to the illness of Col. John H. Whallen, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Spring Bank Club, the mammoth barbecue and fish fry that was scheduled to take place on July 14 and 15 was postponed to Thursday and Friday, July 24 and 25. This will be one of the largest outdoor affairs ever held off here, the proceeds of which will go to the Holy Cross church. On the first day an old-fashioned barbecue will take place. Meat barbecued in good, delicious style and fine, tempting bourgeois will be served. The second day will be fish day, at which time fresh fish, fried in cornmeal will be served. All kinds of drinks and frozen dainties will be on hand. A feature of this outing will be an immense midway where divers shows will offer havens of diversion. Minstrel, comedy, singing, moving pictures and other forms of entertainment will be provided. There will be music and dancing, and a number of crack teams will drill for cash prizes. Much interest is centered in the big motor boat race, in which many of the best motor boats around here will be entered. A prize of $50 will go to the winner besides a purse made up of the entrance fees of each boat of $2.50. Foot racing will also prove quite interesting. Every one attending is promised a delightful time. The price of admission will be fifty cents for gentlemen and covered five cents for ladies, which includes dinner or supper.

The barbecue will be given at Spring Bank Park at the foot of Greenwood avenue. It is accessible by the Oak-street, Walnut-street and West Broadway car lines. The grounds are just opposite what was formerly the White City or River-view Park.

TRAGIC DEATH.

The tragic and unexpected death of John Philip Curtin, the eighteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius J. Curtin, brought sorrow to many hearts and desolation to the bereaved parents and relatives. With a number of his young friends he was swimming on Friday at the Louisville Boat Club. Young Curtin dived from the barge and as he came to the surface another swimmer dived and struck him full in the forehead. Though severely shocked, the unfortunate youth attached little significance to the accident at the time and went to his office as usual Saturday morning. Later he suffered severe pains in the head and was obliged to see his physician, who found that he was suffering from a severe concussion of the brain and ordered him taken to St. Joseph's Infirmary, where he died Monday evening. His funeral took place Wednesday morning from the Church of St. Frances of Rome, of which he was a devout member. The solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. Thomas White, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Raffo, and was an affectionate tribute to one whom the reverend preached regarded most highly. The deceased youth was a most popular young man, an ideal son and brother. To the father and mother and relatives so suddenly and so tragically bereft is extended the sympathy of their many friends.

REAL COUNTRY PICNIC.

For the benefit of the new church now being erected by Rev. Father Boes the people of Pewee Valley and vicinity are arranging a real country picnic, to be held in Woodlodge Grove, on the Louisville and Eastern Interurban car line, on Tuesday, July 22. The feature, of course, will be the country dinner, in addition there will be music, refreshments, amusements and a number of exciting contests. The admission will be only ten cents, and every ticket-holder will be entitled to chance on a number of valuable awards.

CARSON.

Growing Demand Noted For His Trial On Charge of Treason.

Blinders Are Taken From Eyes of Thinking English Votes.

Carson's Trip Through England and Scotland an Absolute Failure.

PROTESTANTS FAVOR HOME RULE

The Marconi affair is dead and buried—so dead indeed that not even the most persistent of Lord Northcliffe's sensational papers can make any more political capital out of it, but has to worry through the silly season on a diet of suffragette news and Ulster revelations, cables an American correspondent from London. The Marconi scandal has, however, done some good insofar as it has opened the eyes of all thinking English voters—who by the way are not very numerous—to the evils of party politics, or as they are called in America, machine politics. And never have English voters witnessed such a display of barefaced hypocrisy in politics.

There is a growing demand among Liberals that the Government ought to arrest Sir Edward Carson and place him on trial for high treason, a demand which has even found expression in the House of Commons. In various papers cartoonists have depicted the Government in the act of arresting suffragettes, but permitting "King" Carson and consorts to go free, even now that the former has openly hurled defiance at the Government and challenged the Cabinet to have him put under arrest for inciting the populace to arms.

One of the reasons why the Government has done nothing to clip the wings of their hot-headed enemy, who proved such a valuable friend in his professional capacity in a lawsuit arising out of the Marconi affair, is in part because that the recent trip of Sir Edward through England and Scotland to arouse the voters against home rule proved such an absolute failure, while another is the one I stated in my last cable letter, that no matter how eager the Orangemen of Ulster are to fight, they will find nobody on whom to use their more or less wooden rifles. In the meantime the agitation against home rule is carried on in many forms all over England, though evidence is not lacking of the apathy of the voters in regard to this question. The conviction that England will sooner or later have to transform herself into a number of self-governing communities with an imperial Parliament at Westminster to decide only affairs of national interest is slowly gaining ground, and those who see in the granting of home rule to Ireland the first step in this direction will of course do nothing to delay a natural evolution.

On the Tory side there is an absolute lack of arguments against those who hold such a view, as it would be an obvious folly to claim that it is detrimental to patriotism as long as the German empire and the United States are eloquent proof that citizens of a federated country are in every way as patriotic as citizens of undivided countries.

The favorite argument against home rule for Ireland still remains that it is considered dangerous to the religious liberties and spiritual welfare of the Emerald Isle, that the measure is essentially a matter of religion and that its establishment would mean the oppressive and intolerant rule of the Roman Catholic church, and that no Protestant has been given that Protestants will not be molested. But even this argument has lost its strength since a Protestant member of the House of Commons was elected by Nationalist voters and since hundreds of Protestants in Ulster have declared publicly that they have absolutely no fears in this direction.

BARRY—SCHLEGEL DAY.

All records for attendance at the Knights of Rest Fishing Club camp were broken last Wednesday, to occasion being John J. Barry and George Schlegel day, the former being appointed at the head of the invitation and reception committee for the day. A splendid tribute was paid the Fourth and Fifth ward leader by the presence of prominent and influential leaders in both political and business life. A splendid and appetizing chicken supper was served 225 people under the personal direction of the head chef, Walter Bowman, and an exhibition of his pedestrian abilities was given by Dan Gilman, the former champion long distance walker. Gilman walking from Mr. Barry's place of business to the club resort in thirty minutes, the distance being five miles.

CELEBRATES.

Mrs. Josephine Bisot, one of the oldest and best known residents of New Albany, is in Memphis, Tenn., visiting her son, Emil Bisot, and family. This week she took part in a double birthday celebration, her own and that of her little granddaughter, Miss Eleanor Josephine Bisot. From Louisville and New Albany she received a number of congratulatory messages.

LOUISVILLE, KY. SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1913

Evansville, Ind., July 7.
Kentucky Irish American:
Gentlemen:
Upon entering the sixteenth
please accept my sincere congratulations. You have done exceedingly well in the past fifteen years. You have fought your battles for religion, truth, justice and for clean politics nobly well. Your motto is "For God, Church and Truth."
Do Right and Fear No One.
That should be the motto of every true Christian and of every Catholic paper. Of the many English papers that come to my home, I prefer the Kentucky Irish American and the Louisville Record. Both are excellent Catholic papers and they should be found in every Catholic home in the States of Kentucky and Indiana. Continue, my friend, in your fight for the church and her doctrines; in your struggles for right and justice. May God for many years to come bless and protect you. More power to you. Ad multos annos. Yours,
J. H. H.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

In the House of Commons the opponents of home rule for Ireland suffered another overwhelming defeat. The motion of Bonar Law, the opposition leader, to reject the home rule bill, was defeated by a vote of 352 to 243, and the measure then passed its third reading without division. The bill will now go to the House of Lords. Here it will be rejected, of course, but when passed again by the House of Commons it will become law.

While the Liberal Government feels confident of success, the desperation of the Tories is set forth in the following press dispatch received Wednesday from London:

A new Unionist attempt to place a further obstacle in the way of the enactment of the home rule bill for Ireland was announced in the House of Lords this afternoon by the Marquis of Lansdowne, a Unionist leader. When the bill is submitted to the Lords for second reading on Monday, Lord Lansdowne will move
"that this house decline to proceed with the consideration of the bill until it has been submitted to the judgment of the country." The Unionists believe they have discovered a flaw in the Parliament act which provides for the passage of bills over the heads of the Peers within a specified period. Their contention is that if the House of Lords postpones dealing with the Irish home rule bill by an adjournment to a date beyond the life of the present Parliament, the House Government will be powerless to force legislation because the Parliament act overlooks the possibility of the Upper House giving itself a prolonged vacation and going on a virtual strike against legislation.
It seems probable that the Marquis of Lansdowne's motion is a preliminary to the taking of some such step.

Local storekeepers and gaugers
in the internal revenue service passed resolutions Monday night
arraigning the City Hospital management. This action was followed by the appointment of an investigating committee, who have discovered that there was no grounds for the resolution or any neglect upon the part of the hospital authorities. The investigation should have taken place first.

Only on English soil were the Stars and Stripes treated with disrespect on the Fourth. How different in France and other countries, where Old Glory was seen everywhere and the day celebrated with the greatest enthusiasm. And England would draw the United States into an alliance.

Never before was the City Hospital as well conducted as under the present regime, which has brought that institution up to a standard unsurpassed in any like institution in the country. Certain the editor of the Post must have been suffering with colic when he referred to the hospital last Saturday.

All honor to the Knights of Columbus, whose portrayal of the "Signing of the Declaration of Independence" awakened the American spirit of patriotism among the thousands who enjoyed a day long to be remembered.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Miss Blanche Kennedy, a stenographer residing at 1105 Baxter avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury at Third and Jefferson last Tuesday morning. While crossing the street she was struck by a street car and knocked down, but fortunately fell away from the wheels and escaped with slight bruises. Miss Kennedy was carried into the Tyler Hotel and cared for and was then taken to her home.

TWIN CITY LEAGUE.

The defeat of the Champions by the Kentucky Oaks pulled the former out of first place last Sunday and the victory of the Spring Banks over the Shamrocks gave the Holy tory was a little lucky, as the Shamrocks were without a pitcher, their center fielder and catcher, Hoxan

and Hines, alternating in twirling.
The Bruins are coming strong again and changes may be expected weekly that will be surprising. To-

ANOTHER RIVER VICTIM.

The large circle of friends of Patrolman Timothy McCarthy were grieved and shocked when they learned of his death by drowning in the Ohio river on the evening of the Fourth of July. For several days he was unwell and off duty, and in an endeavor to seek relief from the heat he went to the river at Fourteenth street to cool off, accompanied by James Lynch and Edward Mulligan. McCarthy had not been long in the water before he was seized with cramps. Despite his call for help and all efforts to save him he sank, and when the body was recovered by Martin Kellahar life was extinct. He is survived by his father, Timothy McCarthy, Sr., and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Linton and Mrs. John Linton. The last sad rites over the remains were conducted Sunday afternoon at St. Patrick's church, the pallbearers being Lieut.
Pat Mullen, Lieut. Schupp and Patrolmen Savage, Simcox, O'Hare,
Reilhan, Lawler, Allen, Connelly, Kiley and Sage.

TRINITY COUNCIL PICNIC.

The annual picnic of Trinity Council, Y. M. I., will take place at Phoenix Hill Park next Tuesday with euchre and lotto in the afternoon and dancing and cabaret show to be the features in the evening.
The dancing will be conducted under the auspices of the Trinity Social Club, which insures a pleasant evening in the dance hall. A handsome and numerous line of prizes have been secured for the euchre and lotto.

ANNA HYNES HURT.

Miss Anna Hynes, the seventeen-year old daughter of Thomas Hynes, 718 South Twenty-third street, was run down by a motorcycle ridden by William Pence at Twenty-third and Broadway last Sunday afternoon, sustaining injuries that have since confined her to her home. With Miss Anna Doyle she was crossing the street, the former escaping without injury. Miss Hynes, who was rendered unconscious, was attended by Dr. M. J. Brennan, who found that she was suffering from bruises and internal injuries. Only recently the unfortunate girl was graduated from the Sacred Heart Academy.
Pence was arrested and charged with malicious assault.

GOOD FERRY BILL.

Next week at Fontaine Ferry a bill of unusual merit and interest will be offered in the vaudeville theater for its patrons. Louisvillians who enjoy this form of amusement can not but appreciate the fact that Manager Biker is giving the best show of this kind that he can book, and that the acts which are playing at Fontaine Ferry from week to week are the same as those which are given on the big vaudeville circuits during the winter. The swimming pool offers many allurements for those who like to go into the water, and with

ANOTHER AUTO VICTIM.

Edward Whalen, the fifteen-year-old son of Dennis Whalen, 749 South Eighteenth street, is another victim of the automobile. Young Whalen was riding his bicycle Saturday evening at Eighteenth and Broadway when he was run down by an automobile owned and driven by J. E. Chowling, being knocked to the street and receiving bruises and injuries that have since confined him to his home. He is under the care of Dr. Macfin and will soon be able to get out again.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing
 the Past Week—General
 News Notes.

Division 3 held a largely attended meeting Monday night, and all present appreciated the presence of State President Patrick J. Welsh.

Division 1 meets next Tuesday night and not again till August 8. There will be business of interest to all members to be transacted, and therefore a large attendance is looked for.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets Wednesday night at Falls City Hall. There has been no relaxation in the work of these good women, who will hold a pleasant and interesting session and review their success of the next six months.

From present indications there will be a record breaking crowd at the moonlight excursion of the Hibernian Social Club. The committees have done excellent work and nothing that would add to the enjoyment of the occasion has been omitted.

State President Welsh is an enthusiastic advocate of the study of Irish history in our schools. Monday night he made a strong appeal for encouragement in this direction at the meeting of Division 3, and urged that body to offer prizes and lead in this laudable movement.

The address of State President Welsh at the meeting of Division 3 Monday night created much enthusiasm. There is no more earnest member of the order in Kentucky than our State President. Every Hibernian should heed his advice and aid him in doubling their present strength.

RECENT DEATHS.

Most genuine sorrow has been felt throughout Holy Cross parish for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thoben, 3605 West Broadway, caused by the death of their bright little daughter, Mary Juliana, whose innocent soul joined the angelic hosts July 4. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, Rev. Father Brey conducting the sad obsequies, which were attended by many mourning friends.

The passing away of Miss Norma Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Kline, 2212 West Broadway, takes from her home and from her circle of friends one beloved beyond the ordinary. She was twenty years old and succumbed to a complication of diseases, bearing her sufferings with Christian fortitude and resignation. Her funeral was held Tuesday morning from the Sacred Heart church, the Rev. Father Walsh being the celebrant of the mass of requiem and preaching a fitting sermon in which there was consolation for the bereaved parents and relatives. Miss Kline is survived by three sisters and five brothers.

MEDALS HER REWARD.

Miss Roseline Delaney, a well known and popular young girl of this city, graduated from the Academy Notre Dame de Sion, at Marshall, Mo., at the close of the school year with high honors, and received in reward for her diligent study two gold medals. Her parents went to Marshall to witness the commencement exercises, and with them Miss Delaney paid a visit to some friends residing in Kansas City. They returned to Louisville for the Fourth.

The Fourth of July will now mark an event of interest in the history of St. Patrick's congregation. With quiet but impressive ceremony the cornerstone of the new parochial school was laid on Friday of last week. Work will be pushed as rapidly as possible to have the school ready for the opening of the school year next September. When completed it will be second to none of our Kentucky schools.
